For The Concern Of Kenneth Craig Scott

Sometimes I don't think we are aware of the love of our fellowman, as much as we should be. During my son's two years of illness, not only did I learn that no matter how big or sad our problems are, we only have to look around and see someone worse than ours. We want to try and thank these people whose desire and compassion to reach out and help came from far and near, in meaningful ways and so many words.

We would like to first thank the doctors and their staffs who worked so diligently with God to help make my son's life less painful. The staff at Lynchburg General Hospital -- who made so unselfishly gave. The staff at the American Cancer Society office and Mr. Thurman for their concern and help. The many clubs and organizations that so willingly pitched in and gave; the many prayer services that were held for Kenneth; the bloodmobiles that were held for him; the Metropolitan Ambulance Service, who day in and day out took such good care of Kenneth en route to and from Charlottesville. A special thanks to Mr. Kimball Glass and his crew whom we saw night and day in the last week of my son's life. It is people like these in our communities that makes this a place to be proud of and not to knock it, but to be thankful that we are part of it.

Because there are many such doctors and their staffs who worked so diligently with God to help make my son's life less painful. The staff at Lynchburg General Hospital -- who made our stay there as cheerful as a sunny fall day; even when sometimes it looked like the world around was falling in their laughter never stopped.

We thank our friends and neighbors for the cards and donations and for the help they
